

Shadab Bano is a Professor of History at Aligarh Muslim University. She served as Joint Secretary and Coordinator of the Northern Regional Committee of IAWS (2020-2023). Her thrust area of research is on slave studies and gender history in medieval India, education and women's rights in contemporary India. She has been persistent in raising women's issues on campus, especially for access to university resources and against the gender disparities in higher education. She campaigned for women teachers' representation in the University's decision-making bodies, and especially as part of the executive committee of Teachers' Association. She has written in reputed journals on institutional patriarchy and negotiation for rights in higher education. She has co-edited the volume Teaching/Writing Resistance: Women's Studies in Contemporary Times with Panchali Ray.
